

As a frequent traveler for both business and pleasure most people would think that I would be in support of cell phones being used aboard aircraft. That is not the case. The public is already subjected to every personal and business cell phone conversation in almost every other aspect of our lives. In restaurants, on public transportation and in doctor's waiting rooms we are forced to endure sometimes loud and annoying conversations on cell phones. Let airplanes continue to be the only place that we can enjoy some peace and quiet from cell phones. Thank you.
